JMS Full clone site

Posted by erick - 2012/06/25 09:04

Hi

As I would like to make a Clone of my master site as 1st Slave (having childs) I wonder if I can use same URL for Master & Slave.

for example : www.mysite.com for master AND www.mysite.com for clone Slave_1

Will it be understandable ?

Eric

==========

Re: JMS Full clone site

Posted by edwin2win - 2012/06/25 15:36

Clone or duplicate the master website can be done with a rule like "replicMaster" that is described several times in the forum and also described in the tutorial video 0.d (moreless at the middle of the video).

See
http://www.jms2win.com/en/forum/24-joomla-multi-sites-configuration/9933-duplicate-template-and-extensions-but-not-content#9946

You can NOT yet have 2 identical URL (domain) that make reference to different website.
In JMS 1.2.x, you need to have a unique domain URL that make reference to a unique slave site. So if you want to have slave1 as a copy of the master, you can for example create www.mysite.com/slave1 that correspond to the slave site.

In JMS 1.3.x that will coming soon, it is possible to have several website with exactly the same domain URL that will use additional information to create variant of a same website. The variant are geo-localisation, browser features such as mobile device and browser accepted language.

==========