Before Buying Question: Sharing Module

Posted by tollerhecht - 2009/09/03 12:28

I want to show the same Module (in my case jcalpro latest events) on two websites.
If i change calendar-entries in the master-URL, are they automatical changed in the module on the slave-URL? is this possible with JMS?

==========

Re:Before Buying Question: Sharing Module

Posted by edwin2win - 2009/09/03 16:36

As this JCalPro is not yet defined in JMS for the installation and sharing, I need to review it manually to see if this is possible.
In general, the install can be added for the JMS tools but the sharing is not always possible it that impact to share all the websites.

To know which extension are already defined, you can go in http://www.jms2win.com/component/content/article/135

So send me this JCalProd in attachement of an email for a review.
This can take few days.

==========

Re:Before Buying Question: Sharing Module

Posted by milestonelife - 2009/11/03 02:33

Have you looked at JCal component for sharing yet?

I want my users to have a calendar which shows their events from all the slave sites.

Not sure if this is possible

==========

Re:Before Buying Question: Sharing Module

Posted by edwin2win - 2009/11/03 10:38

I have never received the JCalc component for review that explain why you don't see it in our current list of extension.
If you want that we review it, send it us in attachement of an email (see contact us).

==========