Thank you for the info.
As you have probably noticed with previous Joomla update, this may take a little time before we release a new JMS update that is compatible with joomla 1.6 beta x.

Each time that a new beta is release, this does not mean that we are compatible with it and this is normal as joomla is still in beta and they may need to change some implementation that may impact extensions.

A preliminary test of beta7 show that you can install JMS 1.2.35 but that the patch for the Global Configuration does not work properly. That was already reported with the beta 6 and we are working to have a fix for that in the next release.

I have prepared a patch 1.2.42 that fix the Global Configuration patch.
I will do other test and probably group several patches before releasing a new JMS version

That sounds great.

Rumors from some that Joomla 1.6 RC may come before end of this month.

Wonder if they'll skip Beta 8?

Thank you for the infos.
We will see.
Perhaps we will have several RC
