Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach()

Posted by nicsra - 2011/02/27 11:31

I used Multisite Newsflash Module, got below warnings on front-end, (username changed):

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach() in /home/username/public_html/modules/mod_multisitesnewsflash/helper.php(38) : eval()'d code on line 107

Multi Sites Articles sharing Version 1.0.12 is installed and used already.
When I use, Type of Link: Redirect to other side..., above warnings didn't show up.

Any idea to solve it?

Thanks

==========

Re: Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach()

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/02/28 19:56

It is not easy to know the origin of that.
A solution would be to add a trace in the code to try know the "eval" content that is executed.

Do you have the SEF enabled or not.
Perhaps that you don't have any menu defined with the "Article Sharing for JMS" and that the SEF try finding the definition of such menu item.

Perhpas you can create a hidden menu item with the "Article Sharing".

==========

Re: Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach()

Posted by nicsra - 2011/03/02 02:27

SEF either in Master and Slave already disabled.
http://jms2win.com/images/fbfiles/images/SEF_disabled.png

Article sharing already used and place in hidden menu, screen shot attached.
http://jms2win.com/images/fbfiles/images/View_Menu_Items_1299028462164.png

I have no objection to submit you personally (through your PM) my administrator login so that you can see in and find out what is the problem.

==========

Re: Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach()

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/03/02 09:29

If you want that we have a look directly on your server, this is possible with our billable support that you can order at http://www.jms2win.com/en/joomla-multisite?page=shop.product_details&flypage=flypage_multisites.tpl&product_id=35&category_id=1

==========

Re: Warning: Invalid argument supplied for foreach()

Posted by nicsra - 2011/03/03 15:11

My problem is only in use of Multisite Newsflash Module. Since I bought it, I cannot use it as expected.

==========