Share some tables between master and slave

Posted by boo2 - 2012/03/02 11:09

Hi,

I am running JMS 1.2.72 in Joomla 2.5. I want to know, is it possible to create slave from front-end with sharing some table from master and some table of the slave of its own.

Like the tables for modules and components will be same for all master and slave. But each slave will have its own content table.

Please let me know, if this is possible.

Thanks in advance.

Regards
Mark

With Joomla 2.5, I strongly suggest that you update your JMS.
See the FAQ for the procedure to get the latest version.
http://www.jms2win.com/en/faq/faq-joomla-multi-sites#cat-122

You can create slave site that share some extension that you have listed in the JMS Templates / sharing tabs.
See also the list of extension that can be shared depending on the version of Joomla and that we have received. If you have an extension that is marked as shared in an early version of Joomla and not in the 2.5, this mean that we never received the extension for joomla 2.5 to review.

You have also the access to this list from the JMS Tool menu / help button.

You can only share the extension that are listed.
