2 Different Joomla Installations / Share Tables

Posted by spcover - 2010/09/15 04:49

I need to figure out if MultiSites will work for me. I have a Joomla new web site (Site 1) that has JomSocial and Almond Classifieds for Joomla installed on it.

I want to make a second web site (Site 2) that is just for classified ads. The problem is that there is certain site-specific information that Almond Classifieds for Joomla stores in the /components/aclassf directory.

So I can't use MultiSites where I use one install of Joomla to run two sites. I need to have two installations of Joomla and share the user, JomSocial, and Almond Classifieds for Joomla tables. This would allow me to correctly setup the data files for Almond Classifieds properly on the second site that get written to disk and still have one user table across both sites.

Is that possible?

Thanks in advance!

Sean

==========

Re: 2 Different Joomla Installations / Share Tables

Posted by edwin2win - 2010/09/15 10:06

This will not be easy if you want to have 2 independent joomla installation because you want to have 2 independent /components directories.

I prefer to tell you this is not possible because try to do that with JMS Multisites is complex.
The solution would be to have 2 master website that declare the other websites as a slave.
That will be dangereous and may result with problem.

So by security, I prefer to tell you that this is not possible.

==========

Re: 2 Different Joomla Installations / Share Tables

Posted by spcover - 2010/09/17 02:31

Thanks for the quick reply. I appreciate it.

==========