If you followed the tutorial, this share the users with "slave1" and not the master.

If you want to share the users with the master, you have to replace the selection of slave1 by the master DB.
So change the JMS templates rule to select the master instead of the slave.

Which version of Joomla are you using ?
Which version of JoomSocial are you using ?

We were be able to reproduce what you described with Joomla1.5.22 and JoomSocial 1.8.7

It seems that a fix done in Joomla >= 1.5.16 has an impact on the JoomSocial login
Put the line 530 in comments like explain in the forum

This is not related to Jms MultiSites.

Hi thank for reply,
Now i can log in my master domaine and my subdomaine, but doesn't work with another domaine link to subdomaine.

When im login to my master example.com i need to login again in my subdomaine example.com/slave1 and the wall discussions and upload pictures in my master jomsocial are not visible on the slave jomsocial on my subdomaine slave site.

(do you have a tutorial for multisite jomsocial)

thank you!

:huh:

First, when you give the "example.com/slave1", this is a subdirectory and not a subdomain definition.

A subdomain is something like "slave1.example.com".

Did you applied the fix documented concerning the sessions and line 530.

Also ensure that when you manage the master website that defined the slave site that you did used something like 'www.master.example.com" but have used "master.example.com" to avoid that access is restricted to "*.master.example.com".
If the master is not part of the websites that must be shared then you have to verify that all the website that you want to share use the same "root" definition.
