Multi Language with shared articles

Posted by Procept - 2011/01/23 22:21

When we set-up our slave site using a copy of the masterdatase we see the articles in the articlemanager from Joomla and multi language with JoomFish is working..

But we want to manage our content from only one site; the master site.
If we use the 'multi sites content' component however, JoomFish seems not to work anymore?

How can we share content and make our sites multi language?
Is there in setup example or installation manual for use with JoomFish?

Kind regards,
Evert

==========

Re: Multi Language with shared articles

Posted by edwin2win - 2011/01/24 18:18

The "Article Sharing for JMS" is an extension that directly read the articles in foreign DB.
JoomFish is an extension that only provide the translation for current websites and it does not exists in "Multisites" version.
So JoomFish, is not able to know the articles present in the other website and is not able to provide any translation for these articles.

If you decide to have articles in several language, you will have to create articles for each languages and provide the appropriate reference to the article in a specific language. In this case, you can not use JoomFish to have the "shared" article present in different languages.

==========