Images from the Main Site

OK so this does NOT work. It must be a bug...Here is the deal

If you have a lot of images in the main site, they get replicated over to the slave site OR the slave site points back to the main site for the location of the images.

If you set the folders in the common section the images get copied over to the slave site.

If you leave the common folders blank the slave site points to the images at the main site in the media manager.

There HAS to be a way to not share images from the main site.
