Trying to create a second site in JMS Multi Site

Posted by andre.mello - 2012/11/26 13:34

Hello everybody!

I'm trying to create an additional site with JMS Multi Site. I went into Manage Sites, added new site and put the details Site. After that I grabbed, I do not know how to see if the site was actually created if need to do anything else. I try to click on the link I chose the Domain, but is blank.

Can anyone help me?

==========

Re:Trying to create a second site in JMS Multi Site

Posted by djdesjardins - 2012/11/30 21:21

Can you provide more detail?

Also, you need to setup the new domain, did you do that step?
Was this based off a template site or was it a fresh install slave site?
What version of JMS? (I know this forum is for 1.3 but not everyone is posting only version 1.3 questions here)

==========

Re:Trying to create a second site in JMS Multi Site

Posted by edwin2win - 2012/12/05 12:34

When you create a website, there are 2 parameters that are important.

The URL (domain, subdomain, ...) and the location on the disk (deployment folder / document root)

For the server, it is mandatory that the location on the disk match the domain that you have defined.

If you are not sure the "location / deployment folder / document" values that you have to setup for a domain or a subdomain but you are able to upload a file with a file manager is the directory that correspond to the domain or subdomain, we suggest that you upload the "hello.php" that you can find in the tutorial 7
The "hello.php" display the path that must be used in the "deployment folder" of JMS.

==========